Current Tide and Informaton Pro Gili Air-Pertama, 26.0 km from Gili Air-Pertama.Next High Water: 23:33 | 1.87mOth low water: 07:25 | -0.03m The three small islands that make up Gili Islands – Gili Trawangan, Gili Meno and Gili Air – offer an authentic Far East experience and surfing for those who want to go on the road. Surfing on the Gili Islands hasn't started yet as in some other Indonesian places like Bali and Lombok, so the crowds are smaller. The locals are also very relaxed, friendly and welcoming to surfers. As more and more surfers and travelers discover these three beautiful desert islands, expect the word to spread and the number grows. While there are efforts to make the islands rustic - there are no motorcycles - now is the time to take advantage of the gili islands' status before the next big thing happens. Gili Islands for the most part each of these 3 beautiful islands has its own character. The same applies to surfing on the Gili Islands. While Trawangan or Gili T is the most developed, Gili Air offers the most local character and is closest to Lombok. For those who just want to escape from everyday life, there's Gili Meno, where you can experience the island's most authentic tastes. The main advantages of surfing on Gilis are the unique quality of the waves, the absence of large crowds and an authentic island experience in a tropical paradise. Gili Wave. Pic from chantae.com Gili Islands Surfing: When and where Gili is unusual because it's the place for these rare right-handed waves! While there are places that break all year round, the dry season from May to October is best for tides because they can make the difference between good surfing and none at all. In general, the so-called Lombok Strait – the link between the Sea of laea and the Indo-Asian Ocean – is not very consistent, but it can offer excellent waves. Bring a wetsuit and shoes as you can't have fun with coral reefs. Gili Trawangan Gili T can be a secret blessing if the swell sits. Surfers for which fast waves are no problem are rewarded with long rides and perfect barrels. The site is a fast right-breaking reefbreak, about 300 meters from the southern end of the island. Surfing here can be difficult and large south-southwest swells are necessary to liberate corals, which are also very popular with snorkelers. The rainy season (January-June) can offer 1-2 meters (3-6 feet) of swelling. In short: Good for experienced surfers Small to no crowds Strong, hollow and fast Best at high tide Pay attention to sea urchins and rocks Friendly locals There is a lot to do when there are no waves. Gili Air is closest to lombok islands and you can paddle or you can just rent a boat. But be careful with strong currents and a rather treacherous reef. When the wind blows from the west and northwest, along with a large south-southwest swell, the place has the best conditions for perfect short barrels. While the waves bend all the tides are good, it can get a little hairy at low tide. Short and hollow surf break Be careful with the reef Avoid surfing at low tide Friendly locals Wonderful views of the empty gili meno this place is known as The Secret and is located 100m from the beach on the southeast corner of the island. When the conditions are good, the secret can bring an impressive swell that develops into a fast, long and hollow right that brings some beautiful walls and barrels. However, beware of the shallow reef and do not be shy to ask the locals for help. Since surfing on Gili Meno is not very consistent, it helps keep amounts under control on secrecy, which can really pay off for those who have some patience. Recommended for experienced surfers Long, hollow walls and pipes Useful Locals Beware of the flat reef Inconsistent, but worth the stunning island tastes of the Sea Turtle, Gili Meno. Image by Francesco White Gili T is the most developed and popular surfing spot on the Gili Islands, Gili Air and Gili Meno are worth a visit, especially if you want to discover something new. For those looking for hidden and secret spots, ask, get intelligent and do research on the site. Experienced surfers should not be afraid to discover new places. Just use your head and respect the locals and surroundings of these fantastic island treasures! 10Reviews3Questions & AnswersGeni Baker wrote a review in July 2019. Portland, Oregon79 Posts4 Useful reviewsGoy beach for water spotsOur 15-year-olds have a lot of fun playing with a loan SUP. The current is quite strong, but manageable. I have a good time swimming under strong currents. Not ideal for snorkeling to low tide. We rent an umbrella for 50,000 Rp for the whole day and 150,000 Rp for sup. No dining, but the Pearl Lounge is nearby. .... Experience date: July 2019WanderlustStars wrote a review in June 2019.
